

GARDEN PROGRAMME

BEV CHING

32 Pandora Place, Pakuranga

Our garden is up a palm lined drive. We have laid out the garden with a back drop of bromeliads, of many different species. Palms placed amongst walkways, with camellia, vireya, azalea, roses, kowhai, and others amongst the garden beds. There is a collection of Tillandsia (air plants). Native birds are always present.

PATRICIA SIMONS

15 Puma Drive, Golflands (Enter through garage at back entrance)

This small courtyard garden is hidden inside four high walls with a Tuscan twist. The garden has a mix of plants, mature trees, shrubs and perennials as well as hanging baskets. This garden will be in full bloom and is sure to inspire.

LOIS PHILLIPS

37 Glenfern Road, Mellons Bay

This garden has gone from a cottage garche to a subtropical one, but with some old fashion roses and features a lot of foliage. Lois likes to group plants in colours and textures and so most of her Bromeliads are grown in pots, as they can be moved around to create new spaces.

34 Litten Road, Cockle Bay

Featuring a collection of plants from bygone days this is an old fashioned rambling garden on a 1/4 acre section. Old World Bush Tea Roses and Rambling Roses climb through trees and over pergolas. The odd piece of farming equipment salvaged from the early farming days in Howick adds to the interest along with quirky garden ornaments, birdbaths and goldfish ponds.

JENNIFER FOSTER

67 Whites Road, Whitford

A tropical garden inspired by the designs of Brazilian artist, Robert Burke Marc, in a location where the micro climate is conducive to growing tropical plants. It has a unique tropical ambience and tranquillity of a garden overflowing with exotic plants more reminiscent of a garden in Brazil than New Zealand.

PAS SOUTHON

19 The Mews, Shamrock Park

10 years in the making, this garden wraps around a 90's suburban house showcasing a sizeable assortment of bromeliads of all shapes, sizes and rarities. Succulents, staghorn ferns, driftwood and airplants are also integrated heavily into the garden, with a 20 tonne driftwood focal piece at the entrance. Bougainvillea and flowers around the property provide pops of colour among the sea of green and red.

3 Morrow Ave, Bucklands Beach

This garden has two styles, the front is a Japanese courtyard garden with a point of difference. It is planted in native NZ plants only in the Japanese format. The back garden is a mixed border English cottage style with a formal pond, which in the warmer months is full of colour both leaf and flower. This is a small but perfectly formed garden.
